

A Village of Elders

by Diana Hughes, RN, BSN, PHN, HTCP

Imagine, having the opportunity to be nurtured and loved by a group of elders. As the years pass different elders appear -- continuing to nurture and forever loving -- as they gift you with their stories of life. All the while you flourish as they give meaning to your life. As each elder comes and goes they leave their loving imprint on your heart that you will carry with you all the days of your life. So goes the story of my life as a nurse in Long-Term Care.

By the time I got involved with Healing Touch it seemed as though it was a natural progression to provide care for my beloved elders. It was my turn to return the loving care I received from so many elders in a special way. Over the years I have become very astute in managing the clinical aspects of the elderly. In fact, as my gerontological knowledge base and clinical skills grew so did my responsibilities. However, in 2001 I was beginning to feel that something was missing from my work with the elderly.

When I completed Level 1 Healing Touch in April 2001 I knew that I had found what was missing from my practice. I found that Healing Touch filled a gap in my care of the elderly and allowed me to provide care that was heart centered and sacred. I have used either one or a combination of Ultrasound, Magnetic Passes Hands in Motion and Hands Still, Pain Drain or Laser techniques to help in pain management and incision site repair with recent hip or knee replacements. In addition, I use Magnetic Passes Hands in Motion and Hands Still or Mind Clearing with those who are experiencing an increase in anxiety or agitation. The Healing Touch technique that I use is contingent on time, level of pain or anxiety the resident is experiencing and/or individual request for Healing Touch.

One of the most profound experiences I have had with Healing Touch was when I was performing a Chakra Spread with a resident who had become a friend. In Long-Term Care developing close relationships with the elderly is common – such was the case with Glenda. Over a 10-year period Glenda had been admitted to The Village HealthCare Center numerous times. I watched her health decline with each admission and we both knew with her admission in January 2007 - it would be her last.

I vividly remember the day when my nurses came to inform me that Glenda was not doing well and had requested to see me. It was the second day of our annual survey with the Department of Health and a member of the survey team was in my office requesting various nursing policies and procedures. My
